20th Anniversary of the Foundation

In this and the Spring 2003 issue we reflect on 20 years of where we've been, and explore where we're going.

First Visit to U.S. for the VP of Philippine Operations

Roland de Jesus, his wife Ning and daughter Janice graced the U.S. for the first time for a month in May of this year. The length of the personal visit afforded PCAFPD a golden opportunity both to honor Roland for his work and to engage with him in face-to-face discussions about Foundation business.

Serendipitously, Roland's visit coincided with the State visit of President Gloria Macapagal Arroyo. Through the Philippine Embassy, Roland and his family, accompanied by Board members Sandy Sinclair and Carol Radomski, were on the White House lawn with President Bush for the welcoming ceremony. Roland also attended a dinner at the Capital Hilton Hotel in honor of the President, which was hosted by the local Philippine community. Board members Maureen Carroll and Ann Snuggs accompanied Roland, and all were able to network with representatives of Filipino organizations of interest to the Foundation.

Roland also made a round of official visits to the Philippines Embassy, the National Peace Corps Association, and the Peace Corps itself. Roland discussed the Foundation from the field perspective, providing his hosts with new insights into our organization. At the Peace Corps office, the Acting Regional Director, the Chief of Operations, the most recent country director from the Philippines, and the desk officers for the Philippines met with Roland and Maureen Carroll and also hosted a scrumptious merienda of Philippine delicacies. PCAFPD donors in the greater Washington DC area had an opportunity to meet Roland during a reception for Roland and his family that was hosted by Maureen Carroll. And, BIMAK, the Filipino organization that sponsors scholars, hosted a dinner for Roland characterized by a lively discussion about the Foundation, thanks to the questioning of our hosts about their investments!

The central event of Roland's time here, however, was a strategic planning retreat for the Board, facilitated pro-bono by organizational development consultant Denise Cavanaugh. Prior to the meeting, Board members submitted their views on the strengths and vulnerabilities of the Foundation, their vision of its future, and their sense of the strategic issues at hand. Using this material, Ms. Cavanaugh led the group through discussions about developing a new generation of leadership, structural options for the Foundation, and programmatic ideas. The outcome of the retreat was a set of priority goals for the next two years. They are:

1. Attract at least six new volunteers—RPCVs, former staff, Filipinos—to serve as Board members or project implementers.
2. Enhance the scholarship program through a university partnership to recruit scholars in underserved fields; internships and job referrals for scholars; and, a mentoring program to link scholars to donors, current PCVs, and Filipino-Americans for moral support and guidance.
3. Conduct a study of former PCAFPD scholars, using the results to inform donors, attract support, refine the program, and establish helpful connections among scholars.

Board members are now busy working in committees to achieve these goals. We invite our readers to join us in these efforts. If you have some time, talent, or information to contribute to these goals—no matter your location, please get in touch with us, using website or mail address.

Roland was able to wrap up his visit by joining Board members in the folding, taping, stamping, etc. of the spring newsletter that you received in June. In between these Foundation matters, Roland and his family got to visit friends and family in Florida, North Carolina, New York and Maryland. We want him back soon! By Maureen Carroll, Sorsogon, 1961-63

In Their Own Words - Reports from Student Scholars

Fernando Eco, Camarines Norte Accountancy, Bicol University

In several months from now, I'm about to receive my diploma signifying the long fourteen years of struggle I underwent from primary to tertiary. It will symbolize all the tears sweat, blood and endless sacrifices and determination that my family and me shed through the years. When that time comes, I think I would be the happiest man in the world. I can foresee those important people behind my success standing proud for my achievement. I can't wait for that time to come. But for now, I'm determined to pursue my dreams no matter how hard it takes!

Today, we live in a nation full of twists and uncertainties. The sun rises and sets with the same problems happening everywhere. Who cannot get disturbed with our political and economic instability. Worsening criminality and poverty, rampant graft and corruption and social conflicts, terrorism and extremism, coup d'etat, widening budget deficit, pollution, traffic and many more. But despite these problems, I will be forever proud of this country because no matter how hard the crisis we face, we are still standing proud and tall because this country never run out hope. The youth are striving and fighting to help combat all these problems and initiate worthy solutions and I'm part of it.

The shield that I will use for the war against the given problems is my college education. Education has equipped me with all the required level of proficiency and competence needed for my chosen profession. Day by day, it prepared and trained me to get ready with the battle against those problems. Education helps me instill in my young heart and mind my duties and responsibilities for my fellowmen, my country and for the world. That I'm part of the solution and I'm destined to be the future builder of a great nation, promoter of harmony among the people and preserver of long and lasting world peace...

I'll support my younger sisters' education for I know that education is the basic factor that molds and direct the youth to the path of success...Last morning, our department head had informed me that I'm one of the candidates for cumlaude. I believe, this is one of the fruits of your legacy to me. I would like to extend my warmest appreciation to you and the foundation for giving me this rare chance to pursue my college education and making my dreams bright and attainable.

God bless you all!

Cyrene Tirol, Davao Social Science, UP Mindinao

Hello sir, I sincerely hope that you and the foundation are doing fine. As for me I can finally say that I am indeed a student because I am officially enrolled. I'm really nervous about my Math 11 (college algebra) subject. I admit that I'm not really good in math, my aptitude test could attest to that..

As of this moment the class where I'm having fun with is Ling 112 (linguistics), it is the systematic study of language. We discuss the rules and systems of language and how to pronounce correctly (American pronunciation). The misconception and mispronunciation of the English language are quite hilarious that you can't help but laugh. It's funny but it also made me aware of the mistakes that I commit when I use English, Tagalog or Cebuano... I also like Philo 171 (Ethics), although I'm really afraid of the teacher because he's really very sarcastic. When you talk to him you always has this feeling that he looks down on you or your answers are not good enough. But later on I realized that he do this to challenge his students, to make them think deeply and come up with sensible answers and not just accept lessons passively.

Zayda Tagbuen, Guimaras

Elementary Education, West Visayas State University
Moving on will not be worth without turning back to the generous people behind my every success in life – the PCAFPD family who've been a part of what I am now... I fully know this will all be impossible without you, I can't imagine how my dream was gradually fulfilled giving me a special way for me to lift up my family's welfare since so much of the responsibility were entrusted to me by my parents, responsibilities that will only remain as a dream if not you and the Foundation were there to lead my way.

I can likewise compare you to a scaffoldings of an under construction building which was intently provided for me to reach the rooftop or the higher parts of the building to be repaired or constructed, or simply symbolizes my goals in life. Yet that top portion as it symbolizes my graduation in college was not a total success, though its just a start for a more challenging world-job seeking. But at least I can conclude I'm somewhat lucky enough to reach this very stage of life. This will serve as a stepping stone towards a better life. And maybe due to the strong scaffoldings I ever had, here I am – a Cum Laude Graduate and a Proficiency Awardee in Reading, my specialization subject. To you all our dear and generous supporters and my beloved PCAFPD family I humbly dedicated this simple but memorable achievement of mine. Again, an unending thanks to all of you...Still this letter will not end, without thanking a very special kind, and loyal staff of PCAFPD and at the same time serve as our supporters – Sir Hiyu Ji or Sir PJ as often called him in the campus when I was still applying for the scholarship. To you Sir, thanks for the encouragement, for your sincere effort in helping me.

Graduates to be Surveyed About Scholarships

Have PCAFPD scholarships had any real impact on the lives of scholars, on their families, and on their communities? Currently the Foundation relies on the reports required of scholars and on spontaneous, anecdotal feedback from graduates to assess the state of the program, guide its administration, and keep contributors informed. For PCAFPD's 20th anniversary, the Board of Directors commissioned a formal survey of all Filipinos awarded scholarships since 1983. Survey results should help refine the program, provide better feedback to donors, scholars, and graduates, and help develop a network of alumni to advise and support current scholars and each other.

The Board approved a draft questionnaire that was pilot tested by eight former scholars recruited by Vice President Roland de Jesus. Graduates' responses were extremely helpful in rewording imprecise questions and illuminating what was not relevant to the purpose of the survey. The questionnaire has been revised with input from the Board and will be mailed to all former scholars. They will be asked to return it in sealed envelopes to be conveyed directly to the Board's researcher, Patricia Kasdan. Results will be published in the newsletter as soon as they are available.

The eight respondents who pilot tested the survey graduated from college between 1993 and 2003. They majored in Accountancy, Education, Electronics, Engineering, Midwifery, and Nursing. Two have married and six are single, none have children. Respondents reported that finding their first jobs after college took between a few weeks and more than a year. They located their first jobs through newspapers, referrals from relatives and friends (including VP Roland de Jesus); one recent graduate is still looking. Their work has mostly been in their fields of study, including data management, engineering, manufacturing, nursing, statistics, and teaching. The highest salaries each reported ranged from P57,420 ($1,041) to P180,000 ($3,265), both for teachers, although a nurse on an international cruise ship reported earning P500,000 ($9,071). Seven respondents do volunteer work for children's foundations, schools, churches, professional associations, and 4-H clubs.

All reported that PCAFPD scholarships helped them a great deal in assisting their families and making their families proud. Most indicated that jobs were easier to find, that they had more skills to help their communities, and that they served as models of success. About half reported more interests and hobbies, as well as higher salaries than they would have had without college scholarships.

Recommendations for improving the program included establishing a support network for graduates, employment counseling, more contact with PCAFPD/Manila, graduates mentoring current scholars, and graduate advisors for the foundation, especially in selecting and monitoring scholars. Respondents also expressed gratitude to PCAFPD sponsors, in the words of one, "I wouldn't reach this far, had it not been of your genuine kindness and generosity."

The survey is under revision and will be sent to all graduates in the coming months. Results will be reported in a future newsletter.

Breakdown of PCAFPD Contributors

Within the last year, more than 330 individuals, couples, and organizations have made contributions to PCAFPD. More than two thirds of contributions were made in response to the twice-yearly newsletter or to scholarship funds in honor of special people. Other PCAFPD supporters made their only contribution during the last year through their membership or renewal payment to the National Peace Corps Association (NPCA, which allows them to designate $15 of the fee to an RPCV group). Many supporters make contributions directly in response to the newsletter as well as making a payment through the NPCA, and many make a contribution more than once a year in response to the newsletters or for a special fund. Several individuals and organizations have supported a scholar for the whole four-year degree program. Many contributions are also made in memory of former PCVs and family members.

Here's a breakdown of information about the most recent 244 checks received in response to the newsletter or special fund within the last twelve months (includes only the latest check, if supporter made two or more contributions in the last twelve months):

| Amount of Check | Number | Percentage |
|-------------------------------------|--------|------------|
| $10, $15 or $20 | 17 | 7.0% |
| $25 | 73 | 30.0% |
| $30, $35 or $40 | 9 | 3.7% |
| $50 | 61 | 25.0% |
| $75 | 8 | 3.2% |
| $100 | 54 | 22.1% |
| $150, $200, $250, $375 or $500 | 16 | 6.6% |
| $1,000 or $2000 | 6 | 2.4% |
| TOTAL | 244 | 100.0% |

Individuals who made contributions in the last twelve months reside throughout the U.S. and overseas. Recent contributors include those who served as volunteers or staff throughout the years Peace Corps has been in the Philippines, friends and family of volunteers, Filipino-Americans and Filipinos now living in the U.S. who knew and worked with PCVs. Here's a breakdown by years of service of PCV contributors compared with the numbers of PCVs in the Philippines during the decade in which they served:

| Year PCV Service Began | Number of Contributors | Number of PVCs in Philippines |
|------------------------|------------------------|-------------------------------|
| 1961 thru 1969 | 217 | 3,403 |
| 1970 thru 1979 | 43 | 2,037 |
| 1980 thru 1989 | 49 | 1,606 |
| 1990 thru 1999 | 21 | 435 |
| 2000 thru 2003 | 16 | approximately 240 |
| Total | 346 | 7,721 |

Words from PCAFPD's Founders... After 20 Years

From Steve Callahan-

I remember hearing from Liz and John Abernethy (former co-country directors of PC Philippines) in late 1982 or early 1983. They had planned a dinner party in their Adams Morgan apartment and invited about a dozen of us, mostly returned volunteers and former staff. Most of the guests had returned in the last couple years and we all seemed to know each other, at least by name. The Abernethys were great hosts. I had thought the dinner party was simply to remember our good times in the PIs.

After the dinner, the "Abs" quickly got down to business and pitched the idea of a group to provide support for young Filipinos. I believe the Abs had discussed the idea with a few folks prior to the dinner but it was still just an idea. That night was an enjoyable time of listening and brainstorming of what we wanted to do, and how to create the support mechanisms to do it, e.g., fundraising activities outreach to RPCVs and folks who would not directly relate to the Philippines and its issues, and others.

There was so much to do at first: a name, tax exempt status, the charter, the president and other senior officials, committees and responsibilities, priorities; and probably most interesting, a fundraising strategy. All of us contributed ideas and time but the Abs, and then Jan Twarowski, led the way. Our limited influence was used to solicit support from earlier groups of Philippine RPCVs. After the basics of establishing the Foundation were done, an ambitious fundraiser was organized using the Stewart Mott Foundation on Capital Hill as our venue. It became clear to us that how we would sustain the Foundation was of critical importance; we were talking about providing scholarships and we did not want to offer scholarships if we could not sustain them.

It was really fun to be a part of the creative planning of the Foundation. The most rewarding experience for me was when the fruits of our labor were finally realized and we had our first bundle of applications. What a tough job it was reviewing, and then selecting what young and hopeful Filipinos would benefit from our limited number of scholarships. We had to temper our enthusiasm with our budget.

Education is not only such an important part of a young person's development, but also is a critical element to the successful development of a country. I am encouraged that the PAFPD has sustained itself over the years. Helping to provide scholarships is such a meaningful measure of our commitment to our PC values.

Steve is Director of Overseas Management Support at USAID, currently assigned in Washington.. After PC and working as PC staff in Washington, he joined USAID as a foreign service officer and has had tours in Kenya, Malawi, Romania, Botswana, and El Salvador.

From Jan Twarowski

Jan Twarowski (Group 143, Fisheries) was interviewed by Dan Zell, Camotes Islands, 1999-2000, coincidentally a current co-worker of Jan's.

He said when his group of volunteers returned to the U.S. they sought to keep on contributing, but "not just in a splintered way." He praised the Abernathy's for their role in PCAFPD's formation. "They got volunteers to excel." Jan recalled the original Founders struggling with the role of the organization. The primary goals, he said, were that the organization had credibility, a wide base of support, and performed works in support of the third goal of the Peace Corps. Although originally the Founders considered a wide range of projects, the Founders chose education because it was the easiest to monitor.

Jan said that he felt that the original vision had basically been met. He recalled that the biggest challenges were who would carry on after the Founders left, and how to bring those new people into PCAFPD. As for the future role of PCAFPD, he suggested soliciting ideas from previous recipients of scholarships, as well as exploring how information technology can be used. For example, distance learning stations and Internet kiosks for entrepreneurs. His overarching theme was that, in his memory, the role that the Abernathy's played in his career as a volunteer, then later with PCAFPD, should be remembered.

Jan has been working at an international development firm, Sheladia Associates, in Rockville, Maryland since 1987.

2004 NPCA Conference Celebrating a Legacy of Service

The National Peace Corps Association (NPCA) will hold its biennial conference at the Palmer House Hilton in Chicago August 5 through August 8, 2004. The conference will feature country of service events, an international marketplace, a Fun Run/Walk for Peace, workshops on global business, writing, environment, advocacy, global affairs and other topics, a Founder's Day Dinner and a Career Fair. PCAFPD is working with its donors in the Chicago area to plan a dinner or other social get together on Friday evening, August 6, and an update or other program on Saturday afternoon, August 7. Both events will be open to anyone in the area, not just those registered for the conference. For information about the conference, check the NPCA website www.rpcv.org. PCAFPD will post details about Philippine related events on its website, www.rpcvphilippines.org (see page 8 of this newsletter). Chicago is a great place to visit! (see story below)

Group 1 RPCVS Establish PCAFPD Scholarship Fund

The first group of Peace Corps Volunteers to serve in Asia arrived in the Philippines in October of 1961. This past October, close to 40 of those Volunteers, along with spouses, partners, friends, and several former staff members, celebrated the 40th anniversary of their completion of service in 1963. Ron Peters (PCAFPD Board member) and his wife Lilia (from Gubat, Sorsogon) planned a perfect weekend of activities, allowing lots of time for war stories and just plain catching up on each other's lives. Highlights of the weekend included a private tour of the Philippines Wild Reef exhibit at the Shedd Aquarium (not to be missed if you are in The Windy City), visits from the Philippine Consulate and the Peace Corps office, a luncheon cruise on Lake Michigan, a splendid fiesta dinner at a Filipino restaurant (including balut), and a very moving ceremony in remembrance of group members who have died.

An outcome of the reunion of special interest to friends and supporters of PCAFPD is the establishment of the Maureen Joan Carroll Scholarship Fund. (Maureen is a member of Group 1 and the President of PCAFPD.) Group 1 members donated over $5,000 to fund scholarships in Maureen's name. The award acknowledged her leadership over the years to keep Group 1 folks in touch with each other and her long service as a Board Member of PCAFPD. Maureen also gets to keep her job of stimulating or organizing future reunions!

Book Corner

After retiring from a long career in international development, which started with Surigao del Sur PCV service and ended after 29 years with USAID in six countries, I started hobby-writing fiction and creative nonfiction about my adventures. So far, I've had nine stories and reflections published in various obscure journals. I've pulled them together in a self-published book called Creative Recollection of a Foreign Service Life. Four of the stories take place in the Philippines. It is available for $10.
