Recommendation

PCAFPD scholars are chosen on the basis of their financial need, academic performance, and commitment to community service and leadership. As the applicant's reference, please describe the applicant's demonstrated leadership skills, accomplishments, and impacts on your community and any other relevant information you feel the committee should know about the applicant.

Balancing work and school is a heavy burden, but one you're determined to bear. Your career isn't merely something that brings in money; it's a vital instrument in your future, a means to continue studying uninterrupted. You're completely dedicated to this choice, realizing that it's the doorway to a greater future for you and for your family. You are motivated by the need to move out of poverty and create a better life, and you believe this is the primary reason you are applying for help—to assist you in being able to keep this process going and get your family out of poverty.

Your devotion to your community is also an enormous aspect of your personality. This experience of working for others instilled in you a simple lesson: a great community isn't created by sweeping gestures, but by small acts of love and the collective knowledge that we are in this together. You understood that serving wasn't about what you were doing; it was about the amazing act of being present and reminding each other that everyone is not alone. This lesson taught you that even a small act, born of true kindness, can make a lasting impression and leave a lasting tie in a community. It is the same sort of spirit of service and resolve that compels you to create a better life for yourself and your loved ones.
