Recommendation

I am pleased to recommend Abigail Dela Peña for the PCAFPD Scholarship. As her teacher and adviser during her elementary years, I had the opportunity to witness her growth as a student and as a young leader. Even at a young age, Abigail demonstrated qualities that showed her potential to become a responsible, hardworking, and service-oriented individual.

Abigail was a consistent honor student during her elementary years. She showed dedication to her studies and consistently worked hard to maintain good academic performance. What stood out to me was her ability to balance her academic responsibilities with her involvement in school activities. She was not only focused on her grades but was also willing to participate and contribute to the school community.

She was also an active member of the Supreme Pupil Government (SPG), where she gained her early experiences in leadership and service. Through her involvement, she learned how to work with other students, communicate respectfully, cooperate with others, and take responsibility for the role entrusted to her. These experiences helped develop her confidence and gave her an early understanding that leadership is not only about holding a position but also about being willing to serve and help others.

As her teacher, I also observed Abigail's sense of responsibility, discipline, and respect for others. She was willing to participate in activities, complete the responsibilities given to her, and work together with her classmates. She showed that she could be trusted with responsibilities and that she was capable of working well with others.

Her achievements during elementary school also reflected her determination and willingness to challenge herself. She was able to maintain her academic performance while participating in leadership and school activities. These experiences provided her with a strong foundation in leadership, teamwork, discipline, and service, which I believe can continue to guide her as she takes on greater responsibilities in the future.

I believe Abigail has the potential to achieve more because she has already demonstrated at a young age that she is hardworking, responsible, and willing to learn. Her experiences as an honor student and student leader have helped shape her character and develop qualities that will be valuable in her future studies and endeavors.

For these reasons, I wholeheartedly recommend Abigail Dela Peña for the PCAFPD Scholarship. I believe that she has the determination, leadership potential, and strong foundation necessary to make good use of this opportunity. It is my hope that she will continue to pursue her goals with the same dedication and perseverance that I witnessed during her elementary years.
