To the PCAFPD Scholarship Selection Committee:
One thing I remember about the applicant is her persistence. As her teacher, I saw how she continued to work toward her goals despite having responsibilities outside school that sometimes affected her attendance. What stood out to me was that these circumstances did not stop her from trying.

She is determined when it comes to her studies and makes sure to accomplish the tasks given to her. Even when things are not easy, she continues to find ways to keep up and do what is expected of her. Her effort shows that she values her education and is willing to work hard for it.
I believe her persistence is one of her strongest qualities. She has learned to manage challenges while continuing to move forward, and I believe this determination will help her make the most of the opportunities that come her way. For this reason, I am pleased to recommend her for the PCAFPD scholarship.
