Dear Committee,

As Zach's Previews Grade 12 Class Adviser in Stratford International School, I am proud to write this recommendation for his PCAFPD scholarship application. Throughout the school year even though I didn't there whole academic year since I switch to other school because of a lot of benefits where Ms. Ana Mica Fuentes was the one swap my position as class adviser of section Bohr, Zach also is my closest student when I was their class adviser that our relationship is like a Father and Son since Zach also didn't see his Father as he grows because of his family situation. I have also personally witnessed his struggles in life and seeing his capacity to lead to his fellow students in the school and excellent behavior both inside and outside the classroom. He is a respectful, humble, and disciplined student who always treats his teachers and students with kindness. Despite facing personal and financial challenges in his home such as coming from a low-income household, broken family where Zach's has remained dedicated to his academics and responsibilities as student and his organizations, resilient, and determined to succeed.

Academically, Zach is an outstanding student who consistently strives for excellence. His dedication paid off when he graduated Grade 12 as a consistent honor student and received awards such as consistent honor student from first quarter to fourth quarter, 2 leadership awards from his organizations and from his new adviser where he serve also as class president, best capstone presenter and many minor awards. What impressed me most was how he managed to maintain these high grades while facing real financial struggles. He never used his difficulties as an excuse, but instead used them as motivation to work harder and excel in his studies.

In addition to his academic success, Zach has shown remarkable leadership and active participation in our school organizations. As a key member of Supreme Secondary Learner Government assistant, Science Technology Engineering and Mathematics Track President, Assistant Editor and Chief in The Globe Publication, Class President and trained in CPR Caravan by Philippine Red Cross. I saw how he balanced his heavy academic workload with his leadership duties, including leading a research group, presenter in their capstone project, and to their other projects and task. He leads by example and always makes sure his team works well together to achieve the grades that they deserve.

Zach truly embodies the values of hard work, leadership, and service that the PCAFPD scholarship looks for. Receiving this scholarship will give him the financial support he needs to continue his college education without heavy financial burden. Given his proven academic record, strong character, and determination to overcome hardships, I am fully confident that he will achieve great things in the future.

Respectfully,

Mark Jones Barlizo Sildora, LPT

Grade 12 Adviser
